Primo – User account with information coming from Alma

Primo NEW UX – Core Principles

- One experience across devices
- Intuitive design to simplify tasks: relevant data and services, minimize tabs and dropdowns
- Consistent view: clean, digestible, „glanceability“, gradual exposure
- Action-oriented (one-click distance to needed information/ services, quick access to full text and OPAC functionality, highlight favorite results)
- Personalization (discipline, recency, materials type, degree)
- Serendipity (citation trail, virtual browse, article recommender, topic search)

A USER INTERFACE IS LIKE A JOKE. IF YOU
HAVE TO EXPLAIN IT,
IT'S NOT THAT GOOD.

Legnato – Enhancing Library Role in Teaching and Learning

- Library often unaware of course materials
- Materials that exist in the library are purchased
- Hard to measure the usage in context and develop collections accordingly
- Challenging to demonstrate contribution to teaching and learning
- Copyright breaches take place
- Reading lists are gateways to the university library

“Stanford University found that more than $100,000 was being spent, mostly by students, on course materials that could be found in the 1,200 databases the university spends millions of dollars to make available.”

Ry Rivard, Inside Higher Ed, August 7, 2013
